About

I teach and research in Greek and Latin literature, particularly epigram and Greek writers in the Roman Empire; ancient books on papyrus; and the reception of classical antiquity in modern culture.

Qualifications

- BA (Hons) in Literae Humaniores, University of Oxford
- MA in Classics, University of Oxford
- DPhil in Greek and Latin Languages and Literature, University of Oxford

Biography

I attended Corpus Christi College, Oxford, as an undergraduate and continued into doctoral research, on Greek satirical epigrams of the early centuries AD. A version of my DPhil thesis was subsequently published as Greek Epigram in the Roman Empire: Martial's Forgotten Rivals (http://books.google.co.uk/books?id=6owDhaVL6nUC&printsec=frontcover&dq=nisbet+epigram&hl=en&ei=Ld0YTKr2KqOksQbot7HkCQ&sa=X&oi=book_result&ct=result&resnum=1&ved=0CCsQ6AEwAA#v=onepage&q&f=false) (Oxford University Press, 2003).

While finishing my doctorate I became a researcher on the Oxyrhynchus Papyrus Project \(http://www.papyrology.ox.ac.uk/POxy/\), and I maintain an active interest in ancient book-illustration.

Through my teaching I developed an interest in classical reception, the study of how later cultures represent and lay claim to the ancient past. My particular interest is in reception of classical antiquity in modern popular culture and subcultures, and this formed the subject of my second book, Ancient Greece in Film and Popular Culture (http://www.amazon.co.uk/Ancient-Greece-Film-Popular-Culture/dp/1904675786/ref=sr_1_1?ie=UTF8&s=books&qid=1263312420&sr=8-1) (Exeter Press, 2006, 2nd edition (<http://bmcr.brynmawr.edu/2009/2009-08-43.html>) 2008).

Since then I have returned to epigram, co-authoring the Greece and Rome New Survey on Epigram (<http://books.google.co.uk/books?id=ZowJ29dRWPkC&printsec=frontcover&dq=nisbet+epigram&source=bl&ots=ekDn5xQvFL&sig=thE4ye8DmwhrdmkJMIHCB7mHkk0&hl=en&sa=X&ei=shZUOmSLuSx0QXp3IAo&ved=0CDUQ6AEwAA>) (Cambridge University Press, 2010) and contributing to several major edited volumes. My latest book, Greek Epigram in Reception (in press: Oxford University Press, Autumn 2013) combines my interests in epigram and classical reception study into a new account of how nineteenth- and early twentieth-century Britain interfaced with the ancient Greek past.

Teaching

- CLC core modules: Greek and Roman Literature; Idea of the Polis.
- First-year projects: Hesiod, Greek Lyric Poetry.
- Seminars: ancient epigram, Sappho.
- Lecture Options: The Ancient World in Popular Culture; Greece and Rome in Television and Film.
- Greek and Latin language.

Postgraduate supervision

- Classical reception studies.
- Ancient epigram.
- Greek literature, particularly imperial ('Second Sophistic')

Research

My recent research has combined my two main research strands - ancient epigram, and classical reception - in a study of how translators and popularisers in the later nineteenth century came up with ways of talking about Greek epigram that let them redefine ancient Greece as a social ideal for the present day. The outcome of this research is a major monograph for Oxford University Press, which will be published in August 2013. I talk about classical reception in recent podcast for the Ideas Lab \(http://www.ideaslab.bham.ac.uk/MP3s/Dr_Gideon_Nisbet_Podcast.mp3\).
