About

I have been based in the Department since 2012. Prior to that I held the position of Lecturer in English and Drama at Birmingham City University (2009-12) and I lectured at the Drama and English Departments at Royal Holloway (2006-8). My work primarily focuses on contemporary and modernist socially engaged British, European (especially Austrian, German, French) and American theatre and its intersection with philosophy.

Qualifications

BA (Hons) - English Language and Literature, Aristotle University of Thessaloniki

MA in Research (Theatre) - Royal Holloway, University of London

Postgraduate Certificate in Skills of Teaching to Inspire Learning - Royal Holloway, University of London

Doctor of Philosophy - Royal Holloway, University of London

Associate Status - HEA

Biography

I joined the University of Birmingham as Lecturer in Drama in 2012, having held a full-time Lectureship at Birmingham City University from 2009-2012 and having taught extensively at Royal Holloway. My fully-funded Doctoral study at RHUL focused on defamiliarization in the work of Martin Crimp through a phenomenological investigation.

I have published extensively within my research areas and you can find details on my publications in the relevant section of my profile.

I have organized a number of symposia, conferences and public engagement events, most notably Contemporary British Theatre: Towards a New Canon (BCU 2010), Dealing with Martin Crimp (with Dan Rebellato (Royal Court Theatre, 2013), Metaphysical Speculations in Contemporary British Theatre (with Chris Megson and Liz Tomlin, University of London, 2013), Thomas Ostermeier: Reinventing Directors' Theatre at the Schaubühne Berlin (with Peter Boenisch and Clare Finburgh, Central School of Speech and Drama/ Barbican Centre 2014) as well as an interim symposium on Radical Adaptation (with Jacqueline Bolton, Sarah Grochala and Kara Reilly, Almeida Theatre, 2014) and the TaPRA Directing and Dramaturgy working group's sessions on Adaptation (RHUL 2014), while I served as co-convenor for the group in 2013-14. I collaborate with theatres and performance companies in relation to my research expertise (programme notes, public talks).

At RHUL I was one of the founding editors of the academic journal Platform in 2006. I have been a peer reviewer for Platform, Contemporary Theatre Review, JCDE, New Theatre Quarterly, Performing Ethos, Methuen Drama, Palgrave Macmillan, and Routledge.

My first monograph, The Plays of Martin Crimp: Making Theatre Strange was published by Palgrave Macmillan in 2012. My next book, the edited collection Contemporary British Theatre: Breaking New Ground was published by Palgrave Macmillan in September 2013.

I am currently writing my second monograph Social and Political Theatre in 21st Century Britain: Staging Crisis for the Methuen Drama Engage series (edited by Mark Taylor-Batty and Enoch Brater). You can find additional information on my research and a list of publications in the relevant sections of my profile.

I edit, with Kara Reilly, the new international series Adaptation in Theatre and Performance (Palgrave Macmillan, launching in 2016).

Teaching

Dramatic Medium (Year 1)

Performance, Theory, Practice, Critique (Year 1)

Modern Drama: Ibsen to Pinter (Year 2, Convenor)

Theatre Praxis (Year 2, Convenor)

Playwright's Theatre (Year 3, Convenor)

I also lecture on the MRes Playwriting programme and supervise UG research.

Postgraduate supervision

I currently supervise a number of PG students (MRes and PhD) working on diverse areas of contemporary theatre research. I welcome enquiries from prospective students interested in new writing, modernism, adaptation, translation (languages: English, French, German, Greek) and/or the intersections between theatre and philosophy.

Research

My research is internationalist in its scope, with a specialism in modern and contemporary British and European theatre (primarily in Austria, Germany and France), translation, adaptation, spectatorship and citizenship, aesthetics and politics, as well as performance, critical/cultural theories and philosophy (with a focus on phenomenology).

Other activities

I present my work in theatre conferences regularly and deliver invited papers/workshops on my areas of expertise in the UK and internationally. I run the Thinking Theatre blog at www.vickyangelaki.com (<http://www.vickyangelaki.com/>), where I engage with topical concerns in theatre performance, research and teaching. I have an international network of research collaborations with academics and artists in Europe and have had associations with professional bodies such as TaPRA, IFTR/FIRT, ESSE and CDE.
