About

I specialise in the teaching of French grammar and writing skills at all levels. I run a second-year specialist module called Translation in Practice, as well as teaching practical translation skills at final year and at MA level. I am the Senior Admissions Tutor for the School.

Biography

I graduated from the University of Birmingham in 1991 with a first class degree in French Studies (I spent my Year Abroad at the Université de Bourgogne, in Dijon, where I was awarded the DEUG). I stayed on to do a PhD and began teaching almost straight away, becoming a full-time member of staff in 1996.

Teaching

I teach French language on the BA programme at all levels. I lead seminars in first year on Introduction to French Literature and Film Studies. My language students can find extra support on my grammar pages \(http://tree-genie.co.uk/TeachingHome.html\).

I run a second-year specialist module called Translation in Practice, which will help you to improve your reading comprehension skills and your translation skills, as well as teaching you how to use some professional translation software.

Translating (from French into English) is one of my passions. I hold the Institute of Linguists' Diploma in Translation (2001), and I am an Associate Member of the Institute of Translation and Interpreting. I have worked as a business interpreter at trade fairs, on behalf of the French Trade Commission, and as a translator in a variety of areas, from alarm systems to bathymetrics.

Research

My post is teaching-only, but I still find time to dabble in a little research. These days I am interested in Europe's rather complicated relationship with the e-book and how Google's attempts to bring Book Search to our continent have fared.

- Conference paper: 'Europe and the e-book: a love-hate relationship', delivered at Material Cultures 2010: Technology, Textuality and Transmission (Centre for the History of the Book, University of Edinburgh), July 2010.
- Conference paper: 'When is a book not a book? New definitions in the digital age.', delivered at the U21 Conference: Cultural Heritage and Technology (University of Birmingham), September 2010.

Other activities

In June 2010, I won the New Talent in Translation prize, organised by the French Book Office (Ambassade de France), judged by Adriana Hunter (literary translator), Will Hobson (contributing editor to Granta magazine and literary translator), and Alison Samuel (former Publishing Director of Chatto & Windus). The two source texts were an extract from François Beauce's Un Homme louche and an extract from Alain Mabanckou's Black Bazar.
