About

I studied Combined Honours Italian and Russian at Birmingham University, graduating in July 1989. I have been teaching Italian as a foreign language at all levels for over 20 years and have worked in the Department of Italian Studies since September 1989.

Qualifications

BA(Hons) in Modern Languages (Russian & Italian), July 1989, University of Birmingham.

Biography

I was born in Turin, Italy and moved to the UK in October 1981. In the last 30 years, I have worked in a variety of contexts (as language teacher, examiner, consultant, interpreter, translator, author, editor, proof-reader, etc) both locally and in other parts of the UK and the USA.

Teaching

I teach language courses, translation studies at undergraduate and postgraduate level and language-teaching methodology at postgraduate level. I am the Module Convenor of all compulsory and optional language modules at Undergraduate level and of the Teaching and Learning Italian module at Master's level; I am responsible for the coordination of all language courses and for the training of part-time teachers and PTAs. I am the Departmental Examinations Officer, Timetable Officer, Undergraduate Welfare Tutor and Staff Representative on the Staff-Students Consultative Committee. I am also responsible for the design and maintenance of the departmental WebCT section.

Since December 2005, I have designed, organised and taught (with others, whom I recruited) five 4-week-courses for five groups of 20 final year students from the Italian University of Messina. I am interested in pursuing further projects of this kind with Italian universities requiring compulsory courses abroad for their students.

Postgraduate supervision

I am happy to supervise students on language teaching pedagogy, translation studies and e-learning up to master's level.

Research

My interests are in the teaching and learning of Italian as a foreign language, in translation studies, in e-learning and in the Linguistic interference between Italian and English.

Research funding obtained

In 2002 I was awarded a £22,000 Learning Development Grant to lead a project to develop a languages 'Portal' to provide a learning support interface and access to online resources for students of languages within the University. In this project, I led a team of four people. The project was successfully completed by the deadline.

In December 2005, I was awarded a £30,000 Learning Development Grant to develop material to integrate the use of the new digital laboratories with web-based resources and WebCT and to create the Departmental WebCT Section, which I continue to maintain.

An application for a further £8,000 to allow me to purchase a voice tools software package to run a pilot project to insert a voice tool into the WebCT section was approved in October 2007. I started working on this project in November 2007 and completed the project by the deadline. In March 2008 I was invited to present my project at the First Wimba World Conference in Orlando, Florida.
