Biography

Jaime is a Teaching Associate and PhD candidate at the University of Birmingham. He is currently conducting doctoral research into how international human rights can regulate transnational corporations through the US Alien Tort Statute.

After completing his undergraduate degree in Law and Philosophy at the University of Kent (Canterbury), Jaime undertook an LLM at the University of Birmingham. Focusing on international law and international human rights, he wrote his dissertation on the efficacy of international human rights in recognising and resolving gendered issues within migration. He then joined Birmingham Law School in September of 2012. During his LLM, he acted as an LLM Representative and took part in the Postgraduate Mooting Cup, where he advanced to the finals.

Teaching

- Law of Equity and Trusts.
