Local schools and colleges

Birmingham is a city with education at its heart. Always a leader in national movements to educate people of all backgrounds, it is now home to an array of first-class educational establishments from pre-schools and nurseries to colleges of further education and higher education institutions, such as the University.

Working to support pupils and improve their learning achievements is the mission of Birmingham City Council's services for schools. They aim to ensure that children are offered opportunities to discover and develop their talents; achieve their full potential while in school, and prosper in the workplace. Birmingham schools make learning interesting and exciting. Many offer value-added services such as breakfast clubs and activities after school.
