

Education BA (Hons)

The BA Education (Hons) undergraduate course at Birmingham is one of the most prestigious education degrees in the UK. It combines the academic study of childhood and education with a practical focus on career development in related areas.

The degree is interdisciplinary and combines ideas and research from areas such as education, psychology, sociology, philosophy, social policy and history. It is designed for both UK/EU and international students who have career aspirations and/or academic interests in the fields of childhood and education.

The BA (Hons) Education gives you the option in your second year to study overseas at one of our partner institutions for the first term.

Academic Studies in Education at Birmingham score consistently high in NSS for student satisfaction. Students consistently rate the enthusiasm of our teachers; the organisation of the course, the ability of our staff to explain things, and the teaching quality of the course as high. 98% of our graduates go on to work or undertake further study.

Education at UoB was ranked 13th out of 78 institutions in the Complete University Guide 2015

Education is in the Top 20 in the Guardian League Tables (Education placed 16th out of 75 Guardian 2014)

Academic studies in Education is ranked 7th out of the Russell Group of UK universities. The Russell Group is committed to maintaining the very best research, an outstanding teaching and learning experience and unrivalled links with business and the public sector.

The BA (Hons) Education aims to equip students with the academic knowledge, as well as relevant practical skills and experiences, which aid progression to professional training and to careers working with children and young people in a diverse range of settings and geographical locations.

All our modules explore how people, and especially children, develop and learn in cultures around the world. We identify and evaluate different ways of knowing about and understanding children and young people and their behaviour; with how educational policy can promote, or frustrate, attempts to develop justice; and with the skills and competencies necessary to develop graduate careers in the UK, Europe and beyond.

There are four curriculum strands.

International Study Abroad

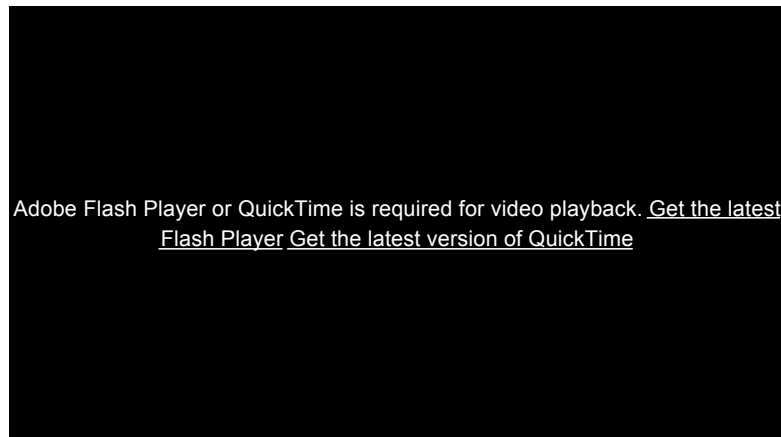

In your second year of study, you will have the option of studying abroad at one of our partner institutions for the first term. The European Educational Exchange Programme allows you to study at selected European institutions (There are currently four European Partner institutions, Oslo and Trondheim in Norway; Groningen in the Netherlands and Dortmund in Germany) and the International Exchange Programme allows students to study at one of a number of worldwide institutions through our International Office. There are plans to extend the Programme to other institutions. All courses are taught in English, at no additional cost to your study. All students participating on the International Study Abroad Programme will receive an Erasmus grant. Further information on the Study Abroad Programme \(/undergraduate/courses/edu/ba-education-international.aspx\)

Key Information Set (KIS)

Key Information Sets (KIS) are comparable sets of information about full- or part-time undergraduate courses and are designed to meet the information needs of prospective students.

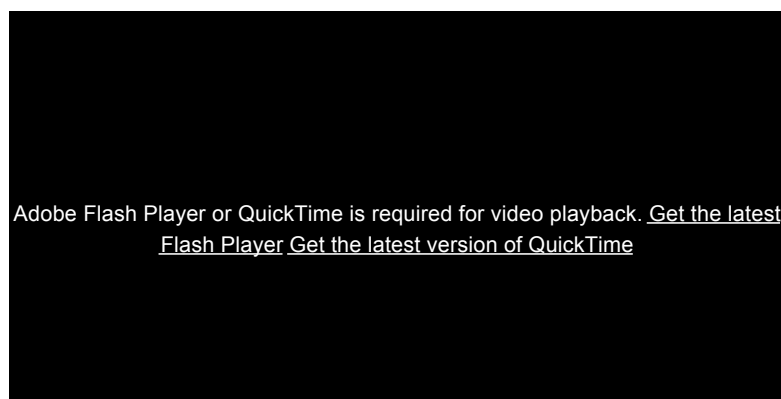

All KIS information has been published on the Unistats website and can also be accessed via the small advert, or 'widget', below. On the Unistats website \(http://unistats.direct.gov.uk\) you are able to compare all the KIS data for each course with data for other courses.

The development of Key Information Sets (KIS) formed part of HEFCE's work to enhance the information that is available about higher education. They give you access to reliable and comparable information in order to help you make informed decisions about what and where to study.

The KIS contains information which prospective students have identified as useful, such as student satisfaction, graduate outcomes, learning and teaching activities, assessment methods, tuition fees and student finance, accommodation and professional accreditation.

Learning and teaching

Hannah has just finished her second year on the programme and here she talks about her experience of the course, her other interests, the accommodation and her final year.

As a Birmingham student you are part of an academic elite and will learn from world-leading experts. From the outset you will be encouraged to become an independent and self-motivated learner. We want you to be challenged and will encourage you to think for yourself.

Your learning will take place in a range of different settings, from scheduled teaching in lectures and small group tutorials, to self-study and peer group learning (for example preparing and delivering presentations with your classmates). To begin with you may find this way of working challenging, but rest assured that we'll enable you to make this transition. You will have access to a comprehensive support system that will assist and encourage you, including personal tutors and welfare tutors who can help with both academic and welfare issues, and a formal transition review during your first year to check on your progress and offer you help for any particular areas where you need support. You will also have access to a wide range of dedicated e-learning, IT and library facilities \(/schools/education/facilities/index.aspx\) within the School to support your studies.

Education is concerned with real life practices and processes. The tutors in the School of Education are experienced specialists and Professors teach both lectures and seminars at all levels of study. Our teaching and assessment strategy reflect this concern with the real world. As well as learning in lectures and seminars, students are asked to undertake a variety of enquiry based learning activities; undertaking small research projects, participating in public debates and working in groups to solve problems.

External Examiner Comments

"The programme content is excellent. It is well structured, with some excellent foundation courses in the first year and with some modules (e.g. research methods, placement) taking place over 2 years thus allowing for progression and continuity. The module offers a rich and diverse curriculum that is highly appropriate for this degree, with some very strong specialisms on gender, history and developmental psychology. The programme is very well designed and affords students much opportunity for cross-curricular learning in ways that develop their understanding (rather than repeating debates/issues across modules). The dissertations strongly evidence this with some excellent examples of students who have thoroughly engaged with the full breadth of the degree programme.

Assessment methods

Studying at degree-level is likely to be very different from your previous experience of learning and teaching. You will be expected to think, discuss and engage critically with the subject and find things out for yourself. We will enable you to make this transition to a new style of learning, and the way that you are assessed during your studies will help you develop the essential skills you need to make a success of your time at Birmingham.

We assess students not only the basis of the knowledge they gained, but also the skills that they have acquired. You'll be assessed in a variety of ways, and these may be different with each module that you take. You will be assessed through coursework which may take the form of essays, group and individual presentations and formal exams. Students also prepare portfolios of experiences and activities which enhances their employability on graduation. Our assessment strategy does not just deliver grades. It seeks to widen horizons and to promote self-development so that our graduates are valued for their leadership and problem solving capabilities.

At the beginning of each module, you'll be given information on how and when you'll be assessed for that particular programme of study. You'll receive feedback on each assessment within four weeks, so that you can learn from and build on what you have done. You'll be given feedback on any exams that you take; if you should fail an exam we will ensure that particularly detailed feedback is made available to enable you to learn for the future.

During your first year you will undergo a formal 'transition' review to see how you are getting on and if there are particular areas where you need support. This is in addition to the personal tutor who is based in your school or department and can help with any academic issues you encounter.

Preparation for your career should be one of the first things you think about as you start university. Whether you have a clear idea of where your future aspirations lie or want to consider the broad range of opportunities available once you have a Birmingham degree, our Careers Network can help you achieve your goal.

Our unique careers guidance service \(/undergraduate/careers/index.aspx\) is tailored to your academic subject area, offering a specialised team (in each of the five academic colleges) who can give you expert advice. Our team source exclusive work experience opportunities to help you stand out amongst the competition, with mentoring, global internships and placements available to you. Once you have a career in your sights, one-to-one support with CV's and job applications will help give you the edge.

Your Birmingham degree is evidence of your ability to succeed in a demanding academic environment. Employers target Birmingham students for their drive, diversity, communication and problem-solving skills, their team-working abilities and cultural awareness, and our graduate employment statistics have continued to climb at a rate well above national trends. If you make the most of the wide range of services you will be able to develop your career from the moment you arrive.

Transferable skills include:

- written communication developed through writing essays;
- oral communication skills gained through reasoned debates during seminars and presentations;
- ability to work as part of a team, through collaborative group work;
- research and analytical skills with the ability to judge and evaluate information;
- organisational and time management skills by prioritising tasks to ensure academic, social and work commitments are completed on time;
- negotiation, informally with peers and formally with staff;
- problem solving;
- IT skills.

Job roles directly related to the degree

Many of our graduates go onto successful careers that are open to any graduate with an excellent Honours degree from a top University, such as banking, accountancy, public services etc. We also actively encourage students to explore opportunities for gaining experience outside the UK, taking advantage of links built in the field of education in Europe and beyond.

Alumni Profiles

The interdisciplinary nature of the BA (Hons) Education degree allows you to develop your career in many different ways. Some of our ex students now work in schools whilst some have entered research. Others have used their degree to work within the theatre or heritage sites in an educational capacity whilst some have decided to pursue further study. You can find out more about the careers of some of our ex students by viewing the Alumni profiles (/schools/education/alumni/index.aspx)

Personal Skills Award

The University of Birmingham offers an employer-endorsed award-winning Personal Skills Award (<https://intranet.birmingham.ac.uk/as/employability/psa/index.aspx>) which recognises your extra-curricular activities, and provides an accredited employability programme designed to improve your career prospects. Many students participate in clubs and societies and volunteer in the local community. The University's Personal Skills Award accredits this putting our graduates a step ahead.
