

News in the College

News

Atom Feed RSS Feed

Urine test could help diagnose aggressive bladder cancer

A simple urine test could distinguish between aggressive and less aggressive bladder cancers according to a new University of Birmingham study published in the British Journal of Cancer.

02/12/2013

Medical and Dental Sciences Research

Revolution in liver disease diagnosis could help NHS priority list

A ground-breaking scan that can identify and help to treat liver disease, could make painful and invasive liver biopsies a thing of the past, thanks to a trial being led by the University of Birmingham.

21/11/2013

Medical and Dental Sciences Research

Birmingham professor talks about the language of cancer

A University of Birmingham professor tackles a different aspect of cancer today, as he features in a BBC World Service documentary about the language used to describe the disease.

19/11/2013

Medical and Dental Sciences Research

Research is the key to saving lives, conference hears

Leading academics in the field of maternal health have called on researchers to do more to help save the lives of mothers and babies around the world following a major conference at the University of Birmingham.

14/11/2013

Medical and Dental Sciences Research

Saving Mothers Lives at the GLOW Conference 2013

Translational research bringing better healthcare closer to mothers and babies worldwideOn Friday 1st November the GLOW Conference 2013 enabled over 140 researchers and clinical practitioners to learn from the latest findings and work more effectively both as independent experts and complementary collaborators in the fight for better maternal healthcare worldwide. The opportunity to make a difference must be grasped and the time to grasp it is NOW.

07/11/2013

Medical and Dental Sciences

Birmingham researchers look to give sports clubs a heads-up on concussion dangers

A study looking into what happens to the brains of sportspeople in the aftermath of a concussion – and what could happen if they suffered a subsequent head injury - has been launched by researchers at the University of Birmingham.

07/11/2013

Life and Environmental Sciences Medical and Dental Sciences Research

Birmingham researchers look to give sports clubs a heads-up on concussion dangers

A study looking into what happens to the brains of sportspeople in the aftermath of a concussion – and what could happen if they suffered a subsequent head injury - has been launched by researchers at the University of Birmingham.

06/11/2013

Life and Environmental Sciences Medical and Dental Sciences Research

Birmingham research tackles liver transplant failure

The re-infection of transplanted livers with hepatitis C virus (HCV) – which can irreparably damage the new organ - could be halted by administering a drug which blocks the virus entering the liver, research from the University of Birmingham being presented at the Liver Meeting demonstrates.

06/11/2013

Medical and Dental Sciences Research

Birmingham researchers find depression in hip fracture patients hinders physical recovery and compromises immunity

Older people who suffer a hip fracture should be routinely tested and treated for depression to aid their recovery and prevent their immune systems from being compromised, according to new research from the University of Birmingham.

29/10/2013

Life and Environmental Sciences Medical and Dental Sciences Research

University of Birmingham researchers in major new centre to tackle crippling condition of rheumatoid arthritis

Leading medical research charity Arthritis Research UK and the University of Birmingham have announced a major new research centre that aims to find out more about the causes of rheumatoid arthritis.

29/10/2013

Medical and Dental Sciences

