

Marketing and Communications Office

The Marketing and Communications section is responsible for enhancing the reputation of the University. This section includes staff responsible for media relations, marketing to prospective students, reputational marketing, corporate events, public affairs, community relations, internal communications and staff with responsibilities for each of the academic colleges. We promote positive messages about the University's strengths through a variety of communications channels to a wide range of audiences including our students, staff, local community, prospective students, businesses, research partners, other universities, influencers and policy makers.
