Human Rights Day 2015

This event is supported by the Bingham Centre for the Rule of Law & the Centre for Professional Legal Education and Research

Since its launch in 2010, the Bingham Centre for the Rule of Law has taken on a remarkably wide range of projects in the UK and internationally, demonstrating the need for a body solely dedicated to the promotion and enhancement of the rule of law worldwide. The Centre is named after Tom Bingham (The Rt Hon Lord Bingham of Cornhill KG) who promoted the maintenance, development and promotion of the rule of law.

The Centre for Professional Legal Education and Research (CEPLER) is part of the Law School at the University of Birmingham. It encompasses those Law School activities which are linked to law in practice and to the legal profession. CEPLER's objectives are to:

- Create opportunities for and facilitate world class research on the legal profession, law in practice and legal education;
- Support and facilitate the impact of the Law School's research across all fields of law, and encourage public engagement;
- Enhance the legal practice skills, commercial awareness and employability of Law School students;
- Have instilled in Birmingham Law School Graduates a sense of civic duty and citizenship; and
- Increase awareness of legal rights and responsibilities amongst the wider community, each in collaboration with the legal profession, our students, the wider university, other academics, policy makers, regulators and others.
