

August 2014 Newsletter

New Starters

Last month we were joined by Emily Summerton who will be working with P&G and Professor Bakalis. Due to a lack of desks, you might see her sitting in my office during August whilst I am away (see later).

Outreach

Congratulations to Zoe George on winning "I'm an engineer, get me out of here". This was a two week online engineering outreach program to schools and they could vote for their favourite engineer. Zoe was part of the food zone and won £500 to spend on public engagement and communication.

Module Timetable

We will forward the module timetable once it has been finalised, but it will be roughly the same as last year.

Exam Marks

John Hooper will be in touch shortly with the usual overview of your module marks to date and an indication of your progress to date. There has been a slight delay as we are attempting a new way of presenting the results.

Holidays

Just to let you know I am going to be away in the Czech Republic/Slovakia in early August on business and then away for a few days holiday in the North East. After that I will be back at work for August 18th, but I am visiting Year Out students and then I am away from August Bank Holiday for three weeks in Canada. I will be available on the Blackberry but Kathleen/Lynn will be available for any major issues.
