The 2020 History of Education Society (UK) conference will be hosted by the Domus Centre for Interdisciplinary Research in Histories of Education and Childhood, University of Birmingham.

The theme for the conference this year is ‘Timeless Memories’: Memory and Temporality in Histories of Education and the keynote speakers will be:

- Maria del Mar del Pozo Andrés, Professor of History of Education, University of Alcalá
- Joyce Goodman, Professor of History of Education, University of Winchester
- Maria Grever, Professor of Theory and Methodology of History, University of Rotterdam

The History of Education Society (HES) UK would like to invite students to submit abstracts for the postgraduate panel at the 2020 annual conference. This panel is a longstanding feature of the HES conference, allowing new researchers to present a 10-minute paper on their current research. Papers in this session do not need to address the conference theme.

Please submit a title and abstract (max. 200 words) to the HES postgraduate student representatives, Catherine Holloway and Ellie Simpson (C.Holloway.14@unimail.winchester.ac.uk) by 29 May 2020.
Alternatively, postgraduate students are invited and encouraged to submit 20-minute papers that address the conference theme. Abstracts for these main session papers must be sent to s.roberts.2@bham.ac.uk. Please see the separate call for papers.

Student bursaries: A limited number of bursaries will be available; these will contribute towards the expense of attending the conference. Applications will be open to those presenting either 20-minute or 10-minute papers. Details of the bursaries and how to apply will be advertised at a later date.

The post graduate panel is a highly anticipated feature of the annual HES conference. It provides an opportunity to share your research with a vibrant and diverse community of researchers and academics.
