Life beyond campus

At the University of Birmingham, our campus is home to your teaching, accommodation and social life, so you can make the most of every moment. But this is just the beginning.

Step beyond the campus and you'll find yourself connected to the wider city. Birmingham is often talked about, but rarely fully understood. It's a city shaped by young people and driven by ideas, energy and ambition. With one of the youngest populations in Europe and over 100,000 students, it's a place that feels vibrant, welcoming and full of opportunity.

From the bustling city centre to the lively neighbourhoods nearby, everything is within easy reach. Explore Kings Heath and Harborne for independent cafés, shops and restaurants, or take a short journey into the heart of Birmingham to experience shopping, culture, sport and nightlife in Digbeth and the Jewellery Quarter.

And while Birmingham is a major global city, it's also one of the UK's greenest. From the open spaces of campus to nearby parks, gardens and canals, there's always somewhere to step back, relax and recharge. With excellent transport links on your doorstep, the city is yours to discover.
