

Sarah Rainford works as a Deputy Editor for RSC Mechanochemistry. Having worked in publishing for around 9 years, Sarah works closely with the Editors-in-Chief, Editorial Boards and Editorial Office to ensure that RSC Mechanochemistry best serves its community of researchers. Before that, Sarah worked as a Research Assistant at the University of Hong Kong.

Abstract: RSC Mechanochemistry is the first journal to focus entirely on the study of mechanical forces in chemistry and the central role of mechanochemistry in many other disciplines. Published by the Royal Society of Chemistry, the journal was launched in 2024. In this presentation, Sarah Rainford will present an overview of the journal and highlights from our publications to date.