Letting childhood through the ages speak for itself.

Children's Lives reveals the changing nature of childhood from the 18th century to the present day, through photography, fine art and objects. This is the first exhibition of its kind in the UK and features many exhibits never revealed before.

Children's Lives will bring the voices of children out of the archives to contrast powerfully with today's world. The exhibition includes the art of Reynolds, Gainsborough, Rosetti, Millais, Watts, Munch, Picasso and Rego plus photography by Bill Brandt and Nick Hedges, with some material chosen by local schoolchildren.
